WEEK IN SOCIETY

The seasen of Thanksgiving is now close at hand, only a few more days and the colors in the form of long streamers will be seen from the coats of the fair society set. Some will be in the brilliant colorings of orange and olue and others will display the blue and white. Apart from the foot-ball game, which attracts thousands to the seene is the first real german of the season, given in this city by the fair sex in honor of the visiting universities. These germans are now works of art, for the leader must be a general in text and self-control, a man of wit and wisdom and of great patience. Some of the latest figures in the cotillion, which have been danged up North were those seen at the great ball given by Mr. William C. Whitney, of New York. A gay figure was that when the cavaliers ride to their partners on hobby horses. Though, rather rameing, it was pronounced a success. One when the cavaliers ride to their partners on hobby horses. Though, rather ramonally a success, one of the most amusing is described in the Boston Globe: "Each lady dancing is provided with a broom, a lantern and an umbrella. Four men are led up to each lady so equipped. One of these she selects as her partner, giving the umbrella to another, who is expected to hold it over her and her partner, while the next secures the lantern with which he is expected to waltz ahead and light the couples on their way, the last man getting the broom has to sweep a way for Tnesday night at the First Bautist.

In this city at Christmas and Easter and sometimes on Thanksgiving-Day, favors are given, which are really very often quite handsome and of value and ot as formerly hung on the wall 's bed-room for a season and then
